New Leaf Foods in the News

Fox 11

Watch the broadcast, and read more of what Food Forest Project Manager Josh Kufahl, and Food Forest volunteer Sarah Jane Peters had to say here: Fox 11 Article

"According to Kufahl, 'The push is to get more berry plants, fruit trees in so we can have the neighborhood hopefully get involved and helping and building a more resilient food system.'"

Green Bay Press Gazette

"Seymour Park is in the midst of a transformation — the city has approved several projects to bring families to the park and make use of its greenery. The area will become an outdoor classroom, a center to celebrate local musicians, a place that combats food insecurity in the neighborhood through the new food forest, and prevent flooding in the area with newly created retention ponds."

Thank you so much to both publications for spreading the word about Seymour Park and the importance of local, accessible, healthy food!

Brown County Parks wants YOUR feedback. Learn more below:

WE WANT YOUR FEEDBACK!

SCAN HERE!
5 MINUTES OF YOUR TIME MATTER.

The Basics
Brown County is in the process of updating its Comprehensive Outdoor Recreation Plan (CORP), which is completed every five years to maintain eligibility for outdoor recreation grant funding and guiding planning documents for park officials. This survey will be open until October 26th, 2023.

What We Need
The intent of this survey is to get your feedback on current park conditions, programs, and services offered and to gather input on future desires and priorities for the Brown County Parks system.

What We'll Do
All input gathered through this survey will be used by the Brown County Parks Department as it prioritizes its projects, operations, and maintenance activities over the next five years.

Suggestion: Request more food forests!
Access the survey by scanning the QR code, or by clicking HERE.
